

Allie Spencer

Allie Spencer has been working with animals in multiple capacities since 2004. Originally from Michigan, she obtained her B.S. in Anthropology-Zoology from the University of Michigan in 2008. After completing a stint as a Research Assistant studying gelada monkeys in Ethiopia, she moved to Southern California for an internship at an exotic animal sanctuary. Shortly thereafter, she found her calling and began her career in Animal Welfare with the San Diego Humane Society as an Admissions Counselor. Since then, she has served as a Humane Law Enforcement Officer, Animal Services Supervisor, Animal Behavioral Health Supervisor, and she currently oversees the Adoptions team at the San Diego Humane Society's Oceanside Campus. Over the years she has collected a few rescue pets herself, including a 10-year-old Pit Bull mix named Emma, a 16-year-old Maltese named Mr. Wilson, a who-knows-how-old Chihuahua mix named Coco, and a 2-year-old "forever kitten" named Jackson.
